> Friday is deadline for county sewerage

easement agreements

The Hancock County Wastewater District No. 1 is still trying to obtain easements for construction of the county's first publicly owned sewerage system. According to Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Attorney Lucien Gex, the district has until Friday to get the more than 600 easements or eminent domain procedures will have to be instigated.

In addition, commissioners for the new district have been briefed on the project and its location, Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District Administrator Ethel Schott Present members of the board of commissioners include Byron Ruf-fin, John Genin and Richard Brehm.

An additional commissioner is expected to be appointed by Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro after an August 14 board of supervisors public hearing regarding an amendment of the county district's boun-

According to Gex, the amendment will expand the district to include a section of Beat Four along Longfellow Road between Highway 603 and the Waveland city limits. The expansion will go as far as Four Dollar Bayou at the upper end of Bayou LaCroix near Bayou Phillip

At present, the entire district is in Beat Five. It is roughly located between the northern boundaries of Bay St. Louis and Waveland and the Jor-

Schott said people who have papers granting easements must have them notarized before turning them in The easements may be turned in at Gex's office on Coleman Avenue, the Waveland wastewater treatment plant at Gulfside Drive or. the Hancock County courthouse, but notaries are not available at all three locations.

Papers may be notarized at the bringing in the easement agreement calls 467-3702 for an appointment, and several notaries are available at the courthouse, Schott said.

People who need more information about the easements can contact the plant or their commis-

Schott said there are three questions most people are asking about easements, which are required for a grinder pump, a three-foot-diameter well and a pipeline from the pump and well to the collection line. All three questions involve cost and homeowner responsibility.

A homeowner who donates an easement before the deadline will benefit from federal and state grant funding for the sewerage project and will not have to pay an installation cost. She explained. Property owners whose homes are added after the deadline will pro-bably have to pay an installment charge because the district does not know if more grant money will be available.

However, all homeowners will have to pay for electrical connections and any in-house plumbing work that may have to be completed to accomodate the equipment. In addition, a monthly user fee will be assessed once the collection system becomes functional.

The county system is the final phase of a four-part project that will also eventually link the Bay St. Louis and Waveland collection systems with an improved version of the Waveland treatment plant as primary treatment facility.

TRAILER DESTROYED-Waveland Firefighter Michael Prendergast sprays water on the smoldering remains of a mobile home on Timbalier Street in Shoreline Park Tuesday. According to Hancock County-Waveland Fire Marshall Jay Marsh, who is assisting the Waveland Fire Department in an investigation of the blaze, the fire apparently started in the back bedroom of the trailer, which was owned by Henry C. Reynolds of Pearlington and occupied by Kelly Walker. According to Marsh, Walker had left the trailer bet ween 11 a.m. and 11:30 a.m., but had returned during the fire and was overcome by smoke as she attempted to enter the burning trailer. Mobile Medic

Ambulance Service took Walker to Hancock Medical Center. Marsh said fire department officials planned to talk to Walker and Reynolds on Wednesday to try to determine the fire's cause. Waveland was assisted by East Hancock and BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Departments and the Bay St. Louis Fire Department in addition to Mobile Medic, Coast Electric and Hancock County Sheriff's Department. East Hancock was originally contacted to fight the the caller did not know the trailer was inside the Waveland city limits, Marsh added. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

New deposits, due dates effective for Bay utility customers today

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A new Bay St. Louis utility system ordinance goes into effect today. This ordinance which was passed by the city council June 30, deals extensively with connection fees, deposits, due dates and miscellaneous charges of the utility

The biggest change included in the ordinance will be the customer to two categories, according to Mayor Victor J. Franckiewicz Jr. In this ordinance there will be a standard deposit and a preferred customer deposit.

"We had been loosing money steadily with the previously low deposits but now will be able to collect deposits that—except in unusual cases—will cover utility bills if they are not paid," he said.

for gas, water, sewerage and garbage will be $210. This more than doubles the old deposit of $100.

Franckiewicz said this increase is necessary to protect the utility system from customers who do not pay their bills and is comparable with deposits for other city utility departments in the area.

Now if customers do not pay their utility bills the services will most ceeds the deposit, he said.

To assist the new customers, the deposit may be made in two payments, 50 percent before receiving service and the remainder with the first monthly bill. Although the standard deposit is increased, customers who maintained a current, non-deliquent account with a utility system for the past year will be required only to pay a preferred customer deposit of $105, which includes the four services.

Standard commercial deposits will be an estimate of a monthly bill. Preferred commercial customer deposit will be be also be $105.

The new deposits will not affect deposits of current customers unless they were to get cut off from the services," Franckiewicz said. Customers who make a standard deposit will be eligible for a refund after they have maintained a nondeliquent account for the required amount of time. And customers who make an initial deposit on the preferred customer status and loose this status by becoming delinquent on their bills will be billed for the difference in the deposit amounts. Another change the ordinance makes is in the due dates for city utility bills. This ordinance will allow "easing up for good customers," Franckiewicz said.

"Good customers will get extra time to pay their bills," he said. "We will also now fighten up with chronic problem customers who are the ones making the city lose money," Franckiewicz added.

In the new ordinance, preferred status customers will be given 28 days following the due date of their

Coast scientists report on marsh oil spills

Laboratory scientists - Drs. Thomas F. and Julia S. Lytle recently reported their research findings on the role of a marsh grass in cleaning up oil polluted sidiments to the 10th Biennial Oil Spill Conference held in Baltimore, Md.

The conference, attended by over 800 scientists, representing oil companies, federal and state agencies and academia from the U.S. and 29 foreign countries, was sponsored by the American Petroleum Institute, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Coast Guard.

The Lytles' work showed that marsh grasses act to clean up oil residues that reach marsh sediments. They reported that the dominant marsh grass in Mississippi, Juncus roemerianus, commonly called needle rush, is better suited for the uptake of oil from the sediments than the dominant marsh plant on the east coast, Spartina alternifiora, also called smooth.cord rass. In addition, needle rush covers a larger salinity range than smooth cord grass, also abundant in Mississipi, and is more tolerant of

Two Gulf Coast Research pollutants than other marsh plants. The most toxic compounds appear to undergo some transformation when they are removed from the sediments by the marh plants.

Recent work by the Lytles has shown that aromatic hydrocarbons, many of them carcinogenic, are definitely removed from sediments but most of them have been converted to other forms during uptake processes.

Future research, for which funds are being sought, will be aimed at these processes that occur which degrade the toxic materials both within the marsh plant and by microbes as the plant dies.

Several conference speakers contended that damage to marshes after an oil spill can be serious, but generally the usual clean-up procedures are even more damaging.

"Recovery of marshes and the estuary may occur more quickly if clean-up efforts are not applied to marsh plants, thus allowing them to uptake and purify by their own natural processes," said the Lytles.

City council to consider paving project bids

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Bay St. Louis City Council is expected to award a paving contract Tuesday for three streets in the annexed area and several other deteriorated areas.

Eighth, Bismark and Ninth streets, where drainage and utility system improvements were recently completed, are among several streets in the annexed area included in a improvement project.

In addition to the streets, the paving contract includes overlaying 26 street intersections or other areas of deteriorated pavement in the city.

Among the intersections are six on Dunbar Avenue between Main Street and US-90; five intersections on Necaise Street, between Bookter and Carrol; and several places in the annexed area on Seventh, Gladstone, Turner and Suebe

Bids were opened Tuesday afternoon and Williams Paving Company of Biloxi was the low bidder with a price of $43,493.

This price was lower than the estimated price for the project of approximately $50,000, according to Norbert Redmond, director of the Department of Public Works.

"The bids were really fantastic and we are very pleased," said Mayor Victor J. Franckiewicz Jr.

"It looks like we will be able to accept all the alternate bids which also includes a small deadend section of Ninth Street and a section of Keller Street," he added.

With this good bid, the city will be able to get all the bad pothole problem areas paved in one ewoop, Franckiewicz said.

Due to the low bid, city officials are also discussing the possibility of getting Tenth Street ready to be paved in time for Williams to pave it while working in the city.

Utility system improvements are s currently underway on Tenth Street Other bidders for the project and their bid prices include Necaise Construction Company of Long Beach, $44,413; Bond Paving Company of Gulfport, $52,866; Bush Construction Company of Laurel, $54,520; and Barriere Construction Company of New Orleans, $60,098.

The Williams' company will have 60 days to complete the work.

While this paving company is working in the city, officials are also going to negotiate for paving of Dogwood Street and Cedar Ridge

Franckiewicz told the council at a recent meeting, he would negotiate with the low bidder of the current project. A contract which included the paying of theses streets had been awarded to Necaise Construction Company underway on the streets prevented the paving from being completed before Necaise finished other paving work and the equipment was inoved to another location. Franckiewicz said although the contract time has expired for paving these streets the city can not force Necaise to return in a timely manner because the paving was originally delayed by the city. He also said Necaise had been agreeable to turning the paving of these streets over to the successful bidder in the upcoming paving pro-

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO ALL VOTERS

For many years, in poll after poll, Mississippians have agreed that a real two party system of government is the BEST system. No question about that! So why do Republicans seldom run in local elections? BECAUSE WE CONTINUE TO BELIEVE THAT REPUBLICANS CANNOT WIN IN LOCAL ELECTIONS! How many times have you heard candidates say "I vote Republican for President, Senator and Congressman, but a Republican cannot win locally." Why CAN'T A REPUBLICAN WIN LOCALLY? Because Republicans continue to vote in Democrat primaries.

THIS YEAR, THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARY HAS TWO EXCELLENT CANDIDATES FOR GOVERNOR. THEY NEED YOUR CONSIDERATION, PLEASE MAKE A STATEMENT WITH YOUR YOTE THIS TIME IN THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARY, YOUR IMPORTANT VOTE WILL TELL TO CAL CAN DIDATES THAT YOU ARE WILLING TO SACRIFICE TO BUILD THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AT THE GRASS-ROOTS LEVEL, FOR THE FUTURE OF GOOD GOVERNMENT IN YOUR COUNTY AND IN YOUR STATE. THIS IS A TIME OF CHANGE IN MISSISSIPPL AND YOU CAN BE A PART OF CHANGE FOR THE GOOD BY VOTING REPUBLICAN. IN THE LONG RUN, IT WILL BE WORTH IT.

When a customer's account reaches the deliquent status, services can be discontinued and payment in full may be required before services can be reinstated.

However, the ordinance also allows for the city to use a customer's deposit to be applied to a deliquent bill.

This enables a customer to have 10 days to restore the deposit before services are discontinued.

Efforts are underway by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and area elected officials to survey the possibility of establishing a Greyhound commuter service between Waveland and New Orleans.

A Greyhound official met last week with elected officials to discuss the possibility.

Commuter service was available for a short time via rail to New Orleans during the 1984 World's Fair.

A railroad commuter service was very popular several decades ago from Mobile to New Orleans. I can remember trips to Rigolets via commuter train to spend summer vacations with my cousins, not to mention numerous trips to New Orleans.

Many New Orleans residents would spend summers in Waveland and Bay St. Louis and the husbands would commute to the city, not to forget the many full-time residents who commuted daily.

It will be interesting to see if enough people would want to use the commuter service.

Parties interested in a commuter service should contact the Chamber of Commerce at 467-9048.

Many folks are still talking about how 'quiet' it has been prior to Tuesday's election.

I have been involved in many elections over the years and this is the quietest county and state election I have ever witnessed.

When the candidates talk about how quiet things are, you know it is quiet.

It is possible things will warm up a bit this weekend for Tuesday's voting.

One thing I have noticed is the fact there are only about half the number of local candidates running compared to previous elections. We do hope there will be a good turnout of voters next Tuesday. The lines have been long for persons voting absentee this week at the Circuit Clerk's office, so it is possible there will be a heavy vote on Tuesday. We hope to see you at the polls.

Congratulations are in order for the Bay St. Louis-based Babe Ruth Youth Baseball Team which won the state tournament championship here this week. The group will travel next week to Cape Coral, Fla. near Fort Meyer for regional competition. That trip will involve expenses of more than $5,000 and the team is seeking assistance in covering the cost of the journey.

Anyone who is proud enough of our local state champions to contribute to their travel fund may contact Coach Ronald Artigues at 467-5058.

News from

Governor Bill Allain

It hardly seems like four years ago we were facing our first election step toward the Governor's Office, but it was. Now another first primary is aproaching quickly.

Please let me urge everyone to get out and vote in their primaries on August 4. You will be selecting candidates for everything form Governor to county offices. This wideranging election only happens every four years, and you should make a special effort to participate in the elections. Mississippians are very good about being interested in politics and government, but even with that attitude, we don't vote in large enough numbers. Everyone needs to take the time to cast their votes in this important election.

We have had a number of races in Mississipply decided by only a few votes. In some legislative and local

I also urge you to become acquainted before going to the polls with candidates running for every office that will be on your ballot. If you can look at the qualifications of the candidates and the promises they are making or the solutions they are offering, you will be fully equipped to make the best decisions races, only a handful of votes have made a difference in the outcome. In a close election like these, one vote really can be the deciding factor.

and injure the many. One does not fight God-less Communism by breaking the laws of democracy or by dealing with its enemies. One does not gain the respect of a people by lieing to its leaders.

Fortunately the recent opinions expressed by the Hancock County Republican Executive Committee are limited, and not representative of all Hancock County Republicans or Democrats for that matter.

Republican Committees througout the nation are also placing Oliver North on a pedestal because they are expected to play their part in this great and protective white washing.

It is the easy way out for grown up men who don't have the courage to admit their mistakes.

Through principles of democracy and freedom of the press, the full truth to this story is yet to come. Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON-The Mississippi Municipal Association is still simonpure: No women and no blacks have ever been elected to offices in the eadership of the association.

But the male-only mayors club which has historically run the municipal organization got its first threat in the recent MMA convention at Biloxi that women, and blacks, and even Republicans in the ranks are restless.

Margaret Barrett, a fiesty 42-year-old city council member from Jackson, mounted a campaign to win the office of second vicepresident, the only "open" spot in the traditional automatic accession to the presidency of the MMA.

Barrett didn't win, but she surprised a lot of people in the municipal associaton by getting 28 votes, including votes of such larger cities as Biloxi, Hattiesburg and Greenwood and mostly small towns. Each municipality, regardless of size, is allotted one vote in MMA elections.

Her open campaign for the office, complete with placards, signs and letters to each member, was virtually unprecedented, since the custom is to elect without opposition the one person whose name is brought forth by the nominating committee. Also, Barrett's bid was the first time any member of the association other than a mayor, has had the audacity to seek an office in the MMA, even though all municipal of ficials, not just mayors, are members. of the formation of Mississippi Women in Municipal Government, which the MMA had refused to recognize until it did so, reluctantly, at this year's convention. "We hoped our organization would be temporary because we were hoping that the association was going to bring us into the mainstream," says Barrett. "But that evidently is not going to be the case." Barrett said she did not launch her campaign for the MMA second vicepresidency unilaterally, that "it was felt someone from our group needed to be put up as a candidate, and we would see what happened."

She pointed out that in the National League of Cities in which many Mississippi municipalities participate, "the president is a woman and the first vice-president is also a woman." Neither, she added, is a mayor.

There never has been a female or black officer of the MMA in the history of the organization, she added, "nor has any officer been anyone but a mayor, in contrast with the National League of Cities When she appeared before the MMA nominating committee, asking for its support, Barrett said the group was "obviously shocked that any woman, and certainly anyone who was not a mayor, would do such a thing." But the nominating group quickly circled the wagons, and came up with the nomination of Mayor Charles "Blackie" Fulgham of Yazoo City, who had been rumored choice for the post far in advance of the convention. Overnight, before voting the next day, the mayors worked behind the scenes to turn back Barrett's bid before the full convention. Not unexpectedly, Barrett got no help from Mayor Dale Danks of Jackson, the outgoing president of the MMA, who declined to support her nomination.

In the roll call vote on the election between Barrett and Fulgham, most of the black municipal officials, and also Republicans, went for Barrett. But the veteran insiders in the association went down the line for Fulgham. In the final tally, Fulgham won, 70 to 28. During the debate on the floor, opponents of Barrett charged that she was "pushing too hard, too fast and too soon." One of the loudest critics of Barrett's candidacy was outspoken Mayor Bill Godbold of Brookhaven who charged "I don't like anyone jumping rank." Godbold told this column later that he "didn't like what they tried to do worth a damn. They thought they could buck the sstem, but it's just like the army, you have to put in

Godbold said he was "not against women" trying to move ahead in the organization, but privately he admittedI'd prefer that they stayed in the kitchen.' Barrett's bid was praised by Kathryn Cummings, a city council member from Hattiesburg who charged that the MMA "is not attuned to contemporary and progressive leadership.' Cummings said the race by Barrett, "opened eyes and doors," and she predicted "these things will come.' Meantime, Barrett said she had no regrets for her challenge. "we decided they were going to have to stand up and be counted. It was the principle of the thing.

Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) is co-sponsoring legislation that will overhaul the nation's welfare system, placing greater emphasis on family responsibilities and creating new job training programs.

Cochran, a member of the Laborand Human Resources Committee. said the centerpiece of the bill is . plan to require states to set up comprehensive remedial education, job training and work programs for welfare parents.

The bill, the Family Security Act of 1987, was authored by Senator Daniel P. Moynihan (D-N.Y) and is being sponsored along with Cochran by a bepartisan group of Senators.

'It's time we modernized the welfare program. It is in desperate need of repair. The incentives have to be built in for job training and a more productive life for those now on welfare," Cochran said. There are about 3.8 million welfare parents now participating in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program. The AFDC program would be replaced with state created broad based programs of education, training and employment to help long term welfare participants overcome their dependency on public assistance.

To encourage welfare recipients to seek jobs, the bill calls for the continuation of child-care and Medicaid benefits for up to nine months after a recipient leaves welfare.

The bill gives new strength to child support laws. Court-ordered child support payments would be automatically withheld from the absent parent's paycheck under this bill Under existing law, deduction of a child support obligation from and. wages is usually permitted when the absent parent falls behind on payments.

The candidates also expressed their views on a number of other topics, including fort reform, public education, economic development foreign investment, the state's image, regionalism, agriculture, and the governor's role.

SCORE Achievement Award goes to Jolly Rogers

Five small businesses along the Mississippi Coast were honored by the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) for their achievements in the development of their enterprises The awards were presented at SCORE's recent 15th anniversary celebration at the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce building.

The five honorees are Larry Patterson, Patterson Electronics, Biloxi: Mack Harris, Taylor-Harris Drug Store, Gulfport; Floyd Patterson, Green Thumb Nursery, Gulfport; Denise Durel, A child's Estate Montessori School, Pass Christian; and Allyson Keller, Jolly Rogers Printing, Bay st. Louis.

Each of these businesses received counseling from the Service Corps of Retired Executives, in the process of developing successful businesses and contributing to the economic growth of their communities. SCORE services involved financial and management advice, accounting and pricing control, marketing and selling, business location and other counseling for both business start-up and expansion purposes.

Allyson Keller of Jolly Rogers Printing in Bay St. Louis said, When I was beginning my plans for opening my own printing business, I saw an announcement for an SBA/SCORE workshop. Taking that day off paid off!"

When I then went to the bank and other agencies with the plans I had, based on the format suggested by the SCORE advisors, I was quickly recognized as a sincere business woman. There was never a greater feeling than when the bank vice-president leaned back and said, 'Well, I see you've done your-homework.' Thanks SCORE and

Denise Durel, owner and director of the two-year-old Montessori School for pre-schoolers in Pass Christian, said they really appreclated the counseling she received from SCORE, which has helped them to expand and to increase their business. Miss Durel reported that she first heard about SCORE in California, where she was living before moving back to the Mississippi Coast When discussing her business ideas with friends, one said, "If you need help, get in touch with SCORE."

Mack Harris, Gulfport, owner and operator of the Taylor-Harris Drug Store in that city, has been counseled by SCORE on a continuing basis since opening the business a few years ago. "This counseling certainly helped us get off to a good start and to help us solve a variety of new venture problems," Harris

Larry Patterson, owner/president of Patterson Electronics in Biloxi, refers to location of his business and resolving pricing of his product line as two of his start-up problems on which SCORE helped him, "Their counseling was very helpful," he observed.

Floyd Patterson (no relation to Larry), owner of the highly successful Green Thumb Nursery in Gulfport, called on SCORE when he contemplated expansion of his enterprise. 'They really helped me,' hea

Hancock Medical Center gets commission approval

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals have awarded Hancock Medical Center a threeyear accreditation...

This award was made by JCHA Board of Commissioners after a review of findings from a survey conducted this past March.

Hancock Medical Center applied for the survey, which was conducted by a professional team consisting of a physician, a hospital ad-ministrator, a registered nurse, and a certified medical technologist.

All phases of hospital operation were reviewed and written recom-

Manager Ronald Artigues says the team has a good chance to win.

"If the boys play our baseball they can win the regional tournament and advance to the Babe Ruth World Series," he said.

The team has already played several of the other teams who will be representing eleven different states in the tournament.

Tournament play will begin Aug.

The Bay team got their berth in this regional tournament with a win Tuesday night over a Gulfport team in the Babe Ruth State Championship Tournament played here in Bay St. Louis.

Bobby Jackson, a Bay team member, was named Most Valuable Player in the eight-team double elimination tournament.

Bay Pitcher Matt Crosby was named Best Pitcher in the tournament. He had a tournament record of two wins and no losses and a season record of 13 wins and no

Two Bay players, Jay Artigues and Brian Laneaux, shared the Outstanding Offensive Player award in the tournament.

In earlier games, the Bay team defeated Corinth, 12-0; McComb, 12-0; and Yazoo City, 7-0.

The team currently has a record of 38-10. This count includes all games played both in the Babe Ruth League and the American Legion League.

A problem the team had in playing in both leagues is having to choose between state championship tournaments because they were played the same weekend.

Artigues said this group of players is really dedicated. In preparation time and playing time for the nearly 50 games the team has already played, the members have "given up their summer," he added.

"We started playing summer ball before school was out and will still be playing games when school starts again," he continued,

Many of these team members have been playing ball together for several years and the state championship title is their fourth state title as a team.

Baseball fans who would like to see this state championship team in action have a chance this weekend when they continue on the American Legion schedule with games Saturday and Sunday at 1 p.m.

The team is also accepting donations to help defray the costs of travelling to Florida for the regional tournament. Anyone wishing to make a donation should contact Ron-

Delta lakes get bass

JACKSON-Some 270,000 Florida strain of largemouth bass have been stocked in several Delta lakes by the state Department of Wildlife Conservation in an effort to improve the fishing, according to executive director Joe Stone.

About 150,000 of the bass were stocked recently in Wolf Lake near Yazoo City. The lake received 25,000 Florida bass in 1985, but they didn't add to the fishery of the lake. Experts say it was probably because of the lake's middy condition.

Other Delta lakes receiving

Other Delta lakes receiving Florida bass were: Townsend Lake in Humphreys County, 20,000, and Atchatalaya Bayou in Humphreys County, 10,000 Indeflore County Six mile lake near Money got 20,000 of the bass, and Roebuck Lake near Itta Bena was stocked with 35,000. Streaks and Slumps

Why is it that some teams get on a tear and for two weeks are unbeatable? Then a month later that same team loses 10 games in a

Why do some players burn up the league for two weeks and then go a month during which they can't seem to buy a hit at the plate or a victory on the pitcher's mound?

If I could find the answer to those questions and bottle it. I'd be a billionaire. Among today's players, Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves is known as a streak hitter. When he's hot, pitchers can't keep the ball in the park. I remember my old teammate Joe Adcock from the championship days of the Milwaukee Braves. When he got into a streak, nobody could get him out. You could throw him a low, outside slider and somehow he'd get it up on his bat and hit it 15 rows into the stands. Five days later, throw him that same pitch and he couldn't do anything with it.

This year, the Milwaukee Brewers got off to a super start and won a lover ball games. Then they went the other way for a long period. That will nappen with a young team. The players are relaxed at the beginning of a season when the team is going well. Then when the team is going badly, those same players put too much pressure on themselves and try to do too much.

Through the years what made the Dodgers and the Yankees such consistent clubs is that they always had that one pitcher who could go out and win a close, low-score ball game. By having a pitcher who could go into a series and win a game 1-0 or 2-1, the team was able to relax a little bit and get back on track. That kept them from getting into a deep losing streak.

I do have some personal theories about avoiding slumps. I think the problem is concentration. Some players will go along and have a good week or a good month and have no understanding of what they are doing that's working for them. Then when they get in a slump, they have nothing to fall back on. If you hit a home run on a change-up, how did you stride on that pitch? How close were you standing to the plate? You've got to know what you're doing that's right. You can't wait until you are in slump and then try and figure out what you're doing that's wrong.

These days coaches use videotapes, and it really helps picking out a batter's problems at the plate or spotting if a pitcher is releasing the ball wrong. But looking at a picture cannot replace knowing Hank Aaron is the top home run hitter of all time with 755 homers. A member of baseball's Hall of Fame, Hank is vice president of the Atlanta Braves.

Each year as football season omes around I receive hundreds of letters from parents regarding sports injuries. There is a growing concern about athletic injuries among children in organized sphilastic imports. among children in organized scholastic sports programs. Although acute injuries (sprains, fractures) as a result of a single blow can occur during play, it is in the training — not the actual play-ing — that many of these injuries are decurring.

Repetitive training to improve fitness or sports skills can cause repetitive microtrauma to tissues of the overstressed extremities. Children may be more susceptible to overuse or stress injury than adults because of the presence of growth tissue, growth cartilage and because of the growth process itself, which may induce muscle imbalances around joints and increase the risk of injury. I am in no way suggesting organized sports be avoided; in fact, I think they serve a necessary purpose for many children, but quality coaching, education and careful preparticipation assessment to determine shitability to a particular sport are essential.

Rice, that long-time staple which often turns an ordinary meal into a festive occasion, especially in our Souther cookery, is the basis or principal ingredient of many tasty.

And what a marvelous "stretcher" rice is for cooks and gourmet cooks and would-begourmet cooks, also, isn't it? Give a Creole or Cajun cook a cup of rice and a few other bits, and she'll turn out a special meal, so the old saying

Bits of steak or chicken, a couple of left-over pork chops, ham slices or shrimp are easily stretched into a special dish. Add green onions, mushrooms, tomatoes, peas, artichoke hearts or whatever's on hand and you'll never go hungry with rice in the kitchen!

As for the addition to the rice - to my somewhat on the cheap side of gourmet cooking, chicken livers are among the most tasty of "extras" to add to the rice-and-such for a feast.

Chicken livers are still relatively inexpensive, even in these inflationary days. Especially if you do as I do and stockpile the livers in the freezer, reserving them each time you buy or cut-up-chicken when. you're lucky enough to get the livers along with the purchase. With some chicken parts, of course, you don't.

If you don't stockpile them in the freezer - or, if, like I, you're addicted to chicken livers and can't always resist cooking up and devouring them whenever on hand, then buy them when they're on sale, or even

Whatever you choose to do - here's a tasty combination of rice and chicken livers, a good "stretcher." And - if you don't like chicken livers, just substitute an equal quantity of ham cubes, bits of shrimp, chicken

New catfish dish developed at MSU

A mouth-watering catfish loaf developed at Mississippi State University could become a boon to people who like good food—and to fish farmers who produce it.

The recent addition to the list of foods made from pond-raised cattish consistently got taste test scores above eight (on a scale of one to 10) among panelists rating the product.

The catfish loaf was made by Dr. Bahman Ghavimi-who recently received his doctorate in food science and technology from MSU-and Dr. Jim Hearnsberger of the food science and human nutrition department of the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station. In studies leading to the effort to produce a widely acceptable catfish loaf, Ghavimi earlier worked in the MAFES animal science department on projects concerned with processed meat products. The catfish loaf, for which the scientists are now seeking a patent, can be eaten hot or cold. Ghavimi said the flavor-somewhat like ham-has won raves from many people. While it makes a good main dish, he added, "it probably will be preferred cold as a snack food.".

Hearnsberger said two advan-tages the dish should bring to Mississippi's catfish farmers are a new product to gain new customers and convenient use for small pieces of fish. Small fillets and chunks can be used in making the loaf.

He said processing of the fish begins with conditioning of the spicemixed pieces in a tumbling machine for seven hours. The process brings protein to the surface and helps bind the pieces when the batch is cooked. Ghavimi redesigned the tumbler from a similar one used in tenderizeing red meat. Following the tumbling, the mixtue of fish and spices is stuffed into a casing, cooked and smoked in a smokehouse. The final step involves chilling overnight in a cooler.

Hearnsberger said the loaf, which is firm enough to be sliced, is ready to eat or can be heated before being consumed. In salads, he added, it can be broken into small pieces for convenience.

ELECT FRANK McNEIL SHERIFF

Subject: Frank McNeil

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

It is with great pleasure I submit the following recommendation for Frank McNeil, a retired New Orleans Police Detective.

Frank McNeil worked under my supervision on several occasions - in the uniformed Patrol and as a Homicide, Robbery and Juvenile Detective.

During these assignments, I always found Frank to be among my best officers. His dedication, interest and knowledge of the job to be done had few equals.

Without hesitation, I most heartily recommend Frank McNeil in any endeavor he so desires.

Doing Things Together Draws Families Closer

By Norine Barnes Child and Family Development Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

You know how hard it is to fit time for family activities into your busy schedule. You also know how important it is to find time, even in small quantities, to do things regularly as a family unit.

Families who do things together are more likely than other families to enjoy each other and cope successfully with problems and transitions. The busier the family the more important it is to work out a family time plan.

Some busy families set aside specific times each week for discussion and activities. Others have guidelines that keep individual activities from squeezing out family time. For example, you can increase family time by eating at least one meal together each day.

Do some things as a family just for the fun of it. To get started ask family members to write a list of things they have particularly enjoyed doing in the past and another list of new activities they'd like to try. Compare lists and make plans, starting simply and expanding as you gain experience.

If family members have widely different interests, be sure to balance your activities to give everyone a chance for his or her kind of fun. The choices are limitless. They include activities such as athletics, day trips, games, hobbles, music, dancing, cooking and reading aloud.

If busy schedules seem to prevent recreational time, plan ways to be together while doing the chores. Rearrange weekend schedules so that you can spend time together on joint projects, Work together in the house and garden.

Celebrate anything-the full moon, the end of school, a family achievement or a made-up holiday. Celebrate any way you want-with a special meal, an outing, gifts, guests, games or awards.

Make a family calendar showing all the special family observances as well as regular holidays. Create and remember special family anniversaries, jokes and rituals. They can enrich your life and give family members a feeling of continuity and togetherness.

Set aside time when you can talk together as a family about your lives, achievements, questions, concerns and dreams. There is no better way to get to know the most important people in your lives and to let them know you than to talk and listen to them.

UNO's Technology Transfer Program earns first patent

The University of New Orleans Technology Transfer Program, established in 1985 to help in the development and marketing of university-based technology, has earned its first patent. Patent number 4,681,450 has been issued today (July 21) for a photopolarimeter, a device which measures light polarization invented by UNO distinguished professor of electrical engineering, Rasheed M.A. Azzam.

Light polarization measurements are used to calculate such things as the gloss of paint, the fiber sturcture of cloth, and the concentration of sugar in solution.

Azzam's photopolarimeter uses relatively inexpensive silicon-chip photodetectors instead of the natural optical crystals used in photopolarimeters of the past, which made them costly—about $30,000.

That breakthrough, along with some other simplications, brings down the cost of Azzam's device to $5,000 or less.

Azzam's device is being marketed by Research Corporation, a nonprofit foundation for the advancement of science and technology.

The services of the UNO Technology Transfer Office, which include evaluations of inventions, devices, processes or products with commercial potential, are also available to the public

Grass In Shade Is Hard To Grow

By Milo Burnham Horticulture Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

This is the time of the year when homeowners begin asking, "What can I do to make grass grow in the shade?" There is no simple answer.

The fact is that no grass will grow in the deep shade provided by a dense thicket of overlapping tree limbs, in most cases where there is bare ground underneath trees a shade-loving ground cover should be substituted for lawngrass.

Three such ground covers are Mondograss (Ophiopogon Japonicus), English Ivy or Myrtle (Vinca minor). The sooner a ground cover is planted the sooner the problem will be solved.

Homeowners frequently spend enormous amounts of time, money and energy replanting and pampering grasses in dense shade, all to no avail. Bringing in new topsoil to aid in the establishment of grasses in these shady areas does nothing but jeopardize the health of the trees by suffocating their roots, it frequently serves also as a source of millions of new weed seeds.

Tilling the bare soil under trees in an effort to get grass to grow, like bringing in top soil, only injures the trees by damaging the roots and making the trees more susceptible to drought stress. Both activitiestilling the soil and adding new soil-usually result in barren muddy areas. If you are wondering why you sometimes see grass growing in fairly dense shade, it was usually established when the trees were smaller and the grass slowly acclimated to the increasing shade as the trees grew. Even in these situations the grass is most likely thin, sparse and very vulnerable to stress because of the lack of light. Eventually even this grass will be lost due to a lack of light,

St. Augustine and fescue (in north Mississippi counties) are two grasses that will stand moderately shady conditions for some time. Neither will perform in dense shade as previously discussed above.

During the last few years improved varieties of St. Augustine such as Raleigh and new varieties of fescues such as Arid, Rebel and Falcon have added to the homeowner's choice of shade-tolerant grasses. These varieties are acceptable for home lawns in north-central and northern Mississippi counties, but fescues are not recommended for lawns in southcentral and southern Mississippi.

Both St. Augustine and fescue require special care for success. St. Augustine is a warm-season grass while fescue is a cool-season grass.

St. Augustine grass is normally planted in late spring and summer using sprigs, plugs or sod since seed is not available while fescue is normally established from seed planted in late summer and early fall.

These grasses require different fertilization schedules and both are relatively light feeders. St. Augustine makes its growth during the warmest part of the year and is fertilized in early spring and. summer.

Fescue grass makes its growth in the cool fall months and again in late winter and early spring. Fertilizer is applied in fall and late winter only to fescue. Growth stops on fescue grass with the hot, dry summer weather. Both grasses can be damaged by over-fertilization or fertilization at the wrong time of the year.

 St Augustine and fescue require a mowing height 1/2 to three inches, especially during the summer. Fescue is especially sensitive to drought during hot summer months and goes dormant or dies without adequate water. Be prepared to water both grasses during the summer.

The main advantages of these two lawn grasses is their moderate shade tolerance and this in itself may warrant the extra care that is required to establish and keep these grasses healthy.

More information on caring for the home lawn is available at your local county Extension office. Ask for the publication entitled "Establish and Manage the Home Lawn."

"PARENT BURNOUT" As any mother or father will tell you, being a parent is one of the most difficult, yet most rewarding, jobs found in life. There are, however, certain periods all parents go through, and you may as well call it "parent burnout." Do you:

Feel unappreciated? Feel irreplacable as a parent? Feel your kids are out to get you?

If so, you're in that "parent burnout" stage. But there are ways to combat this physical and psychological exhaustion once you've defined your "illness."

accomplished more than you. Instead, focus inside and see how you've progressed as a parent since you last gauged your progress.

And when you think nobcay appreciates you, find other supportive adults. Look for activities in your own life so that you don't depend heavily on acknowledgement from your children to "fill you up." ©1987, McNaught Synd.

"A" Stands For Awasome: Of the 14 Emmy nominations that "Santa Barbara" received this year, perhaps no win was more devoutly wished for than A Martinez as Cruz Castillo. Though A didn't get the statuette this time around, his character re-mains one of daytime's most unique leading men, both flery and thoughtful, seductive and caring.

Ironically, Martinez, an actor with years of stage and ensodic TV credits, never imagined that daytime could offer him such a satisfying part. He recalls, "I was told by everyone under the sun that my chances of coming up in a leading role were not sterling (because he is Hispanic). Any opportunity that might come along to put me in the center should be investigated, and that's how "Santa Barbar" was pitched to me."

The pairing of Cruz with head-strong Eden Capwell, played by Marcy Walker, was a true turning point for the character, A believes.

Mushroom market gains in state

By Rebekah Therrell Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

A Eupora man is growing Japanese shiitake mushrooms in his backyard in an effort to glean a portion of the multi-million dollar-ayear mushroom market.

Harry Jackson of Eupora is one of only a handful of entrepreneurs in the South who have recently begun growing shiltake mushrooms. The mushrooms are a delicacy, first grown only in Japan.

The United States imports well over $6 million in shiitake mushrooms from Japan each year. "When the United States in importing millions of dollars of shiitake mushrooms," Jackson said, "why not grow them in this country?"

Jackson began experimenting with four species of shlitake mushrooms just a few months ago. He cuts fresh oak logs to about 4 feet in length. Then he drills about 50 holes in each log using a special drill bit he ordered from Japan. He then fills each hole with shiitake mushroom spawn which he gets from a supplier in Oregon. He seals the spawn in the holes with pruning sealer to protect against foreign fungus and bacteria. Then he stores the logs in a shady area. Jackson expects to harvest his first shiitake mushrooms sometime next year.

"It takes eight months to a yearand-a-half," Jackson said. "But with the four different species I have, I should have mushrooms all year round." Jackson said growing shlitake mushrooms is fairly inexpensive and ideal for the diversified farmer.

"I've got the cost of about two cords of wood and 5,000 shiitake mushroom spawn, or about $700, involved," Jackson said.

Jackson plans on marketing his shiitake mushrooms next year to local restaurants and supermarkets.

Down's syndrome can be a devastating disability to cope with but Dani Harden has not let it stop her from living life to the fullest.

The 18-year-old teenager from Cleveland capped off her four-year career in 4-H competition this July. "Our family has really been enriched and we have grown together because of Dani," said

Charley Harden, Dani's mother. "She is a good influence on other children and she definitely inspires people."

Ten-year-old Boots has been Dani's mare for seven years. She belonged to Dani's stepbrother who participated in horse shows until he left for college. Dani took up where he left off, and in her four years of 4-H shows has only lost once.

"When Dani participates in a horse show, she adds a little flavor to the competition," Mrs. Harden said. "Last rear in the (Jackson) coliseum, she saw her loyal supporters cheering her and she acknowledged them by holding up her trophy and curtsying." Initially, some people who meet Dani for the first time are skeptical about her horsemanship because of her handicap. They watch her and soon they change their attitude.

The judge at the Northwest

District Horse Show in Cleveland appraised Boots as the best in a quarter horse. He offered to buy

Virginia Cherrill in a scene from 'City Lights.'

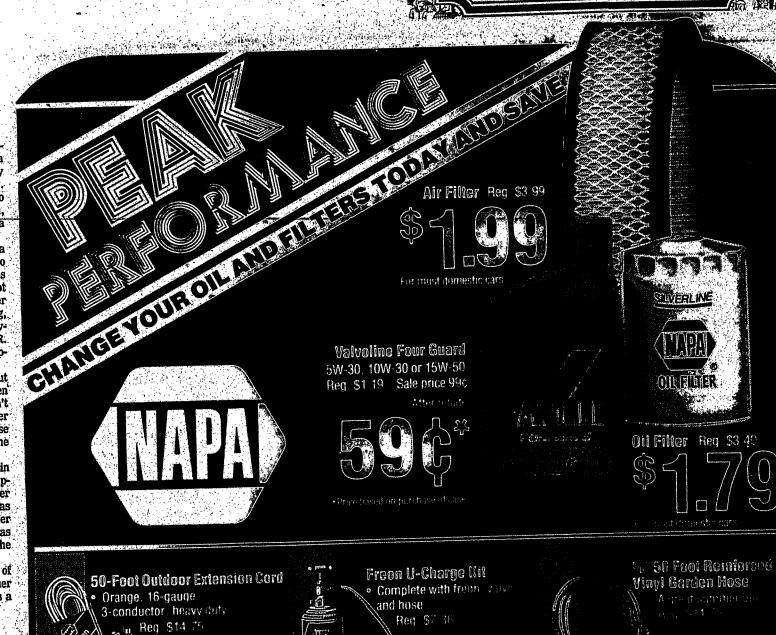

Boots and Dani kiddingly said okay. But when Charley Harden tried to escort Dani into the paddock area, Dani turned to her and said, "Wait a minute, Mom, I need my money." If Boots is indeed the best in a quarter horse, then credit must go to Dani because it is Dani who takes good care of the animal. She does not do anything different from any other horse owner. Dani does the feeding, riding, washing, doctoring and loving. Charley and her husband, G.R. Harden, add a little parental sup-

"Dani is very particular about how things are done," Mrs. harden said. "She sees somethig she doesn't like and she says so. She has her household duties like everyone else and she does them like everyone

Although Dani has competed in her last 4-H horse show in Mississippi, she will still compete in other horse shows outside of 4-H. She has grown up on horses because her mother is a horse trainer and has conducted horse clinics acorss the United States.

"Dani simply never gets tired of being in the ring and holding her horse," Mrs. Harden said. "She's a good little traveler."

Diet and cancer relationship explored

The government estimates that 35 percent of all cancer deaths are related to what we eat. This may seem like a startling statistic, but it actually translates into some encouraging news.

The National Foundation for Cancer Research says that by following a few dietary guidelines, you and your family can dramatically reduce your risk of cancer.

While no food can cure cancer by itself, the following contain nutrients and vitamins which can have anticancer properties: brussels sprouts. broccoli, carrots, cauliflower, lettuce, leafy green vegetables, whole grain breads, whole grain cereals, cabbage, tomatoes, citrus fruits and yellow vegetables.

Americans tend to eat too many fatty oods, which can contribute to breast, colon and prostate cancer.

By cu' ing down on fats, you will also avad obesity, which increases the risk of many forms of cancer. Eat lean meats, fish and poultry. Incorporating high fiber foods regularly into your diet seems to guard against cancer of the colon. Fiber is readily available in bran cereal. Fresh fruits and vegetables are another good source.

Smoked, salty or nitrite-cured foods should be eaten only in moderation. People who eat these foods frequently have a higher rate of esophagus and stomach cancer.

Finally, take care not to char meat

Creating an "anti-cancer" diet is an easy, effective measure that everyone can take. It not only makes good sense, it's good science.

The National Foundation for Cancer Research is a private, nonprofit organization based in Bethesda, Md. With the help of donors nationwide, it has allocated more than $50 million to basic cancer research over the last decade.

Pet Corner

Why is that some people are deathly afraid of cats? Through the years cats have been associated with witchcraft and have been perceived as aloof, sinister, unloving and unpredictable. But a recent report by Kal Kan has debunked these myths and replaced them with the image of a friendly, affectionate and stable companion. Here are a few results of their survey:

*More than 90 percent of those surveyed say their cats are affectionate and playful.

* Almost all say their cats perform tricks and actually come when called by name.

FARM WIFE'S

GREEN THUMB
A Mississippi farm wife's green thumb has taken her virtually around the world, and also has brought people from around the world to her door, since she embarked on a compelling hobby of making the world around her prettier.

Mrs. Martha Anderson's touch is clearly discernible and appreciated by many who travel Byhalia Road a few miles northeast of Hernando where her flowers from spring through fall greet passers-by.

It is a family contagion, for just down the road another outstanding flower show adjoins the farm home of her sister-in-law Miss Leslie Anderson, and it is about the same at two homes of daughters nearby as these and other members of the Hernando Garden Study Club have put this north Mississippi county seat on the flower map for people of many nations.

Both Martha and Leslie Anderson are officials of the American Daffodil Society. Martha has served as Southern regional director of the national daffodil group for the past three years, and Leslie is its national executive director while Martha helps her keep up with the clerical end of the daffodil society's international activities. Martha also is an accredited judge for daffodil shows and is involved in training others who aspire to become judges.

The sisters-in-law both are outstanding exhibitors at daffodil shows and Martha holds the coveted society's Watrous Award, presented to the premier exhibitor of miniature daffodils. This year she was top exhibitor at three shows of miniatures in 12 different daffodil variety divisions—a unique distinc-

As officials of the American Daffodil Society the two Hernando ladies steps have followed the springtime blooming of these favorite flowering bulbs through the British Isles, Holland, Australia, and New Zealand—often as guests in the homes of daffodil growing friends abroad.

In 1986 the ladies were largely responsible for the American Daffodil Society staging its spring meeting and show in Memphis with tours of the Hernando gardens which had been carefully planned and planted especially for the occasion. During the national tour visitors to the Anderson farm toured the Anderson farmhouse where kitchen cabinet doors are gaily and attractively decorated with one variety from each daffodil variety division.

But, the shows and travel are not all glitter and glamour. Stop in at the Wayne Anderson Farm almost any day of the week and typical farming activities are in full swing. Husband Wayne and son Andy are full time farmers who grow a variety of rowcrops and cattle. Tractors and trucks wheel almost constantly past the circular drive of their home with its all-season display of an amazingly wide variety of flowers. And Mrs. Martha Anderson usually can be found nearby—working in the flower beds, or greenhouse, or vegetable garden-or keeping the grandchildren, or working with the local water association books as she keeps up with local patrons' billings and payments.

How does she do it all? Through widespread family cooperation. The Andersons all pitch in and help on their many mutual projects. Husband Wayne, in addition to running the farm with his son, also has found time to serve as a Farm Bureau and district farm credit official. Martha has served the Farm Bureau too as county women's chairman and information chairman. And the whole Anderson family usually caters the annual summer picnic of the DeSoto County Farm Bureau on their farm by preparing and serving the picnic fare for hundreds. The watermelon cutting that caps it off ultilizes melons that are grown on the place also.

Typically at such events the Andersons work elbow-toelbow-father, mother, in-laws, sons, daughter, and grandchildren. They each know how to get things done themselves. One daughter is an official at a local bank and another has just thrown her hat in the political arena for an elective office. Yet it is the uncommonly green thumb of Martha Anderson that has become legend. She collects flower bulbs and seeds from many sources and takes advantage of her greenhouse skills to propagate flowering plants from around the world her lawn even has trees with their roots still living in Germany and Albania.

The plant expert constantly arranges for new varieties of flowers and vegetables to experiment with on their grounds and to share with her many friends and relatives. She personally does almost all of the work in her rather large greenhouse, seeding flowers and vegetables alike in a planting mixture for sprouting and then transferring them to a growing medium in peat containers with a blend of soil just for that purpose which she obtains from her sister's farm in nearby Tate County in prime condition.

Her gift is a rare one, but like most personal gifts it is based on much hard work developing skills. Martha tends most of her growing plants herself, accepting and often encouraging help from her husband in breaking the ground, or providing landscaping timbers, or stones, or whatever.

Still, it is usually Martha Anderson that you see when you just drop in—standing there on a warm day with perspiration melting her dark brown hair a bit as she grins at a new beautiful plant which she has ushered into her part of this world generouly bedecked with blooms.

It's an uncommon gift surely that she has—but she has worked for every bit of its perfection under the warm sun of DeSoto County.

This episode includes Overstreet performing his hit "Still the Same Old Me," recorded by George Jones.

WHY DOES BOB JOINER KEEP HIS MONEY IN A BAG INSTEAD OF A BANK?

Ask most folks where they keep their money and they'll quickly tell you: "In a bank."

But Southern District Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner, who manages our $150,000,000 annual highway budget, kept $88,000 hidden in a whiskey bag in a safe in his home.

That's rather unusual behavior for a man who has more than half a dozen bank accounts, and sits on the Board of Directors of a bank.

Why did Bob Joiner keep all that money hidden in a bag? He couldn't explain it to the judge. He hasn't explained it to the taxpayers either.

At a time when the people of the Southern Highway District want to know where their highway money is going, it's unfortunate that we have a Highway Commissioner who's involved in questionable dealings.

Common Cause surveys Coast legislative Control

Ninety percent of Coast legislative candidates responding to a Common Cause survey have pledged to sup-port a vote of the people on whether to hold a state constitutional convention; according to Paul Neville, president of the citizens' lobbying organization. rganization. Neville said the legislative candidates reflect the popular will on the issue. A bill to put the issue on the ballot passed the Senate earlier this year but was killed in the House, despite broad public support.

Pledging to support a convention referendum in 1988 were the followig Senate candidates: incumbent Cecil Mills, Dist. 43; Marc Chetta; Mark S. Formby, Greg Mitchell, Sherry S. Morris, and James W. Owen, Sr., Dist. 47; Jessie Shifalo, Dist. 48; and incumbent Sen. Stephen-Hale, Dist. 51. Hale's opponent, Beth Krebs, opposes the convention referendum, while David Ogborn, the other candidate in Dist. 51, did not respond to the questionnaire.

Incumbent Sens. Gene Taylor. Dist. 48; Bob Usey, Dist. 49; Thomas A Gollott, Dist. 50; and Louis W. Fortenberry, Dist. 52, did not return the Common Cause survey.

However, Neville noted, all of them voted for the constitutional convention bill in the Senate earlier this year.

House candidates favoring the convention referendum include Bobby Charles Breland and J. W. Take" White, Dist. 105. Challengers Dorothy G. Cole and Otho C. Sellers oppose the idea, while Frank Roberts took neither position.

The incumbent in Dist. 105, E. Fred Dobbins, did not respond to the questionnaire, but did vote to bring the convention bill to the House floor in one procedural vote earlier this year; Dobbins voted no on a second procedural vote on the issue.

In support of the convention referendum were: Ezell Lee, Dist. 106; incumbent Rep. Frank Ely and challenger Roger D. Williams, Dist. 109; Peggy Hoover and J. D. Lundy, Dist. 111; and incumbent Rep. Raymond Vecchio and challenger Bud Strum, Dist. 112.

All four candidates for House Dist. 113 expressed support for the convention referendum: incumbent Rep. Alvin Endt and challengers David J. Harder, Adrian G. Lee, and William "Bill" Ray, Incumbent Rep. Daniel Guice, Jr., Dist. 114, pledged to back the convention referendum, but his opponents Ermon Bond and William R. Flowers, Jr., did not respond to the survey, according to Common Cause.

In House Dist. 115. all four candidates expressed support of the conventin referendum: incumbent Larry Dubaz, Jr., and challengers Ray Magallanes, Ed Ryan, and William Stallworth.

In Dist. 116 Challenger Oliver Diaz supports the idea. Incumbent Rep. Alan J. Santa Cruz did not return the questinnaire, Neville said, but added that Santa Cruz had voted to bring the constitutional convention bill to the House floor for a vote earlier this Incumbent Rep. Gleen E. Endris, Dist. 117, and challengers Linda B. St. Martin and Bob Edwards Wantland all promised to back the convention referendum in 1988. Dist. 120 Rep. James Simpson and challengers Mark Garriga and Frank McCreary all indicated support of the proposal.

Corps projects to benefit Coast fishing industry

Missisippi's threatened Gulf Coast commercial fishing industry is one step closer to increased production. In mid-June, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers kicked off the first part of its massive, three-site freshwater diversion plan for southeast Louisiana and southwest Mississippi.

The Corps and the State of Louisiana signed an agreement to share in the construction cost of the first site—a freshwater diversion structure at Caernaryon, Louisiane

Construction is expected to begin in 1988. The structure is scheduled to be operational in about three years and will reduce the saltwater intrusion into the state's St. Bernard and Plaquemines Parishes between the Misissippi River and the MGRO

Three freshwater diversion structures on the Mississippi River make up the Corps' comprehensive plan to retard devastating saltwater intrusion and costal marsh loss-the Caernaryon Structure, a structure at the Bonnet Carre' Spillway, and a structure on the river's west bank at Davis Pond.

Activities are already underway in Mississippi and Louisiana to implement the second stae in the plan—the Bonnet Carre' structure. In 1984, the governor of Mississippi and the State of Louisiana both signed letters of intent to the Corps to participate in the project.

The project is now under review by the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works. The Corps will complete preconstruction engineer-MEDITIE 1988

This fall, the Corps will begin working out a draft Local Cooperation Agrement with the States of Mississippi and Louisiana for construction of the project. The Bonnet Carre freshwater diversion structure could be under constructon by the early 1990's.

The commercial and sport fishing industry and associated businesses. along Mississippi's Gulf coast and in southeast Louisiana have given the project widespread support.

The 30,000 cubic feet per second of freshwater to be diverted at Bonnet Carre' is expected to increase oyster harvest by 1.9 million pounds in Missisippi and by 5.7 million pounds in Louisiana. Fishermen in both states will benefit from the significantly improved productivity of white shrimp, blue crab, croaker, and menhaden.

The third structure in the Corps' 3-structure comprehensive diversion plan-Davis Pond-is expected to go into the detailed engineering and design phase soon. When the complete plan is in place, estuarine areas will be expanded and favorable salinity conditions will be established in wetlands and estuarine areas from Bayou Lafourche in Louisiana into the western Mississippi Sound.

More than 100,000 acres of marsh will be saved over a 50-year period. Oyster harvest will increase by 24 million pounds annually. Harvests of white shrimp, blue crab, croaker, menhaden and wildlife will also increase substantially.

Pesticide accidents caused by carelessness

As weeds grow rampant this time of year and insects seem to multiply, by the thousands per second, homeowners, gardeners and farmers increase their use of

These chemicals, although beneficial tools for insect and weed control, can be hazardous if not used

The risk of using pesticides is controlled by limitations on which chemicals may be used, how they are used and who uses them said Ruth Morgan, pesticides coordinator and impact assessment specialist with the Mississippi

Cooperative Extension Service. 'Most pesticide accidents happen when users are careless or they do not know how to handle pesticides safely." Morgan said. "Time spent reading pesticide labels is an investment in the health and safety of the user and those around him."

The pesticide label explains any fire explosion or chemical hazards of the product, allowing users to avoid these hazards. The label also tells about the toxicity of the pesticide, or how poisonous it is to humans. "If a pesticide is highly toxic orally, through the skin or through inhalation, the signal word 'danger' in large boldface letters will be on the front of the label," Morgan said.

The specialist added that if the pesticide is moderately toxic orally, through the skin, or through inhalation, the signal word 'warning' will be used. The label of slightly toxic will bear the word 'caution,'

The label is the law and it contains valuable information. Much of the information is on how to use the product, but other sections provide information on protective clothing, storage and disposal, environmental concerns, poisoning symptoms and

"The risks of using pesticides can be kept at low levels just by reading and following label directions, Morgan said.

Watson named to head forestry auxiliary units

Agronomist Vance H. Watson has been named head of MAFES Auxiliary Units, comprising Forage and Pasture Programs, Foundation Seed Stock, and Crop Variety Testing, reprots MAFES Director Verner G.

Besides heading the merged group, Watson will continue to coordinate forage and pasture research. Joe Askew and Bennie Keith will continue to serve as managers of variety testing efforts and foundation seed stocks, respectively.

"These are service programs to growers around Mississippi." says Watson. "The new units provide a better mechanism to serve that clientele. MAFES Auxiliary Units will be considered a support arm of the direcotr's office, with some people in its three sections serving across broader range of effort than before, where this is logical and functional. We will continue to work closely with the personnel at the MAFES branch stations around the state."

New laboratory and office facilities are being made ready in buildings of the Pace Seed Technology area for Askew and the variety testing personnel. Watson also will headquarter there.

THE THEK

Making Own Decisions Good For Teens To Learn

By Ann F. Jarratt 4-H Youth Development Specialist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Recently young people have been asking questions abou, saying "no" to things they don't want to do or to be a part of.

One person asked; "Why can't some guys take 'no' for an answer?"

The person saying "no" is in control of the situation. If she really means "no" and not "maybe," then one technique is to give the same "no" answer every time the question comes up. No excuses-just "No," If all the guy hears repeated is "no," he has no choice but to accept it. That technique is called the "broken record" technique.

Sometimes when a person doesn't want to take "no" for an answer, he may increase the pressure and try to make you feel guilty. If that happens, the best defense is a good offense.

Turn the tables and put the pressure back on him saying, "I'm embarrassed for you, acting like a baby who has to have everything his own way." Or another approach, "I resent your putting pressure on me to do something I've already told you I don't want to Another question from a young lady relates to decision-making. She asked, "Why do some girls let their boyfriends run their lives?" The fifth word in her question is the key-"let." Someone cannot run your life unless you let them. You have control of your life until you allow someone to make your decisions for you.

Lean only guess why a person would let someone run her life. She could lack self-confidence and feel that someone else could make better decisions for her than she could. She might feel as if she has to earn the boy's affection by letting him make all the

Remember, too, that things may not always be what they appear to be. What looks to you like someone allowing someone else to run her life, may not seem that way to the person involved:

A teen wrote, "How can you make decisons when everyone points you in a different direction?"

Get to know yourself and what you want in lifeyour values. List all the choices that you can imagine for the decision you need to make. Beside each choice list the good and the bad things that could happen for each choice.

Sometimes you won't know all the pros and cons and will ask others for information. Be sure to carefully evaluate advice based on someone's personal experience.

For example, if you asked an addicted smoker for advice about starting to smoke, most would tell you they wish they had never started. Some would make excuses and say that they're going to die of something, so why not smoking

On the other hand, if you asked someone in the business of selling cigarettes whether you should start smoking, that person might say that there's no real danger, that the Surgeon General's statement about smoking being harmful to your health is just a scare tactic.

After collecting information, looking at your values, the advantages and disadvantges of each of the choices and how your decision will affect you and others you care about, decide.

Finally, evaluate your decision-making process. Even if the outcome was not exactly what you hoped for, if you use the process correctly, it was a good decision. For those decisions for which you wish a better outcome, look carefully at each step and learn from your mistakes.

Making your own decisions is a very important part of your priceless freedom.

Information will be available at all the Dollar General Stores in 23 states in the East, South and

According to Doug Whitney, director of the GED testing service of the American Council on Education, getting local information about testing centers and classes to the people who need it is the most critical issue facing the GED pro-

"What I admire about Dollar General's program is the company's effort to reach people at the grassroots level to attack the literacy problem in this country," Whitney said:

Dollar General executives presented the plan July 23 to state GED administrators and directors of adult education at a joint conference in Seattle. Information available in stores will include pamphlets about GED preparation classes offered in each community and information for those interested in volunteering as Dollar General will provide mailin cards for persons to indicate whether they are interested in GED classes and test centers, reading classes in the area or tutoring programs.

To reinforce its effort, an ongoing series of Dollar General radio advertisements will remind listeners that GED and basic reading information are available at local stores.

Cal Turner Jr., president of Dollar General Corporation, said the company is excited about encouraging its customers to continue their educations.

Following a successful program in which Dollar General picked up the which Donar General putted in cost of GED study materials and test fees for its employees, company of ficials discussed the inear of offering to help customers with whitely and various state education officials.

"We believe the need is great un our service area," Turner noted. "eleven of the 23 Dollar, General states had graduation rates well below the 1985 national average. We recognize that many of our customers are part of these statistics, and we felt that we could lessen the fear of taking that first step toward getting an quivalency diploma by offering local information in each of our stores."

While many companies provide incentives and financial assistance to employees who take basic reading or GED preparatory classes, Whitney said few have taken similar steps to help customers.

"This is one area where we need help—actually getting testing and study information into the hands of the people who need it most," Whitney said.

LEADERSHIP STUDIES

HATTIESBURG— Russell Lee and Jon Kristian Minchew, both of Bay St. Louis, recently participated in the fourth annual Leadership Studies Program at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Selected sixth-through-12th-grade students who attended the June workshop joined other students from across Mississippi and as far away as Alaska in leadership simulation exercises, problem-solving, decision-making, group discussions, and written and spoken communication tasks.

Each participant also planned an event that he or she is expected to lead and carry out during the year.

Economic Achievements

- Bill Waller was the first Governor to introduce trade missions to the Middle East, the Far East, Europe, Central and South America, which opened new markets for Mississippi products and helped attract new jobs to our state.
- The Food and Fiber Center was created at Mississippi State University to develop ways to process and market raw materials in our state and increase the value of our gross state product.
- Over 54,000 quality new jobs were created.
- Per capita income for our people increased
- The office of Minority Business Enterprises, the first of its kind in the nation, was established.
- The SBA Department was formed to assist with loans for small businessmen.
- A "134 million dollar cash balance" was left in the treasury at the end of the Waller administration.

Advancements in Education

- Funding for grades 1-12 increased by 64%.
- Teachers' salaries increased 48% the largest in state history.
- A program to bring drug education specialists to our classrooms became a model for similar programs across the nation.
- Quality professional education became available to greater numbers by the creation of schools of dentistry, veterinary science and architecture.
- Alcorn, Delta State, Jackson State, MSCW and Valley State were elevated to university status during the Waller Administration.
- Appropriations for universities increased by 80%.
- The state's educational television network was completed and received the highest awards in the nation.

Highways and Transportation on the Move

- A $600 million highway program was passed -- the largest public works program to this date in the state's history.
- A $300 million dollar highway program was completed.
- A four-lane project for Highway 6, between Batesville, Oxford and Tupelo, was approved with federal ARC funds.
- 235 miles of four-lane or two-lane corridor highways were completed or placed under contract.
- The Port of Gulfport was expanded as were river ports.
- The Port of Rosedale (Bolivar County) was authorized.

Taxpayers' and Consumers' Relief

- Mississippi income taxes were reduced by $19 million during the Waller Administration.
- Taxes were eliminated on prescription drugs and farm supplies.
- Waller kept Mississippi the only state in the nation that neither increased taxes nor reduced services.
- The homestead exemption for the elderly became a reality.
- The rate charged on small loans was reduced.
- A Consumer Protection Agency was created.
- Laws were enacted to protect citizens from unethical home sales solicitations.
- Laws requiring homeowner and farm-owner insurance policies designed for consumer savings were enacted.

The People's Government

- Open meeting laws were passed as well as openness in all phases of government.
- County development visits, in which state and county governments worked together, were initiated.
- A Minority Council met monthly with Governor Waller to address and solve minority problems.
- Blacks and women were appointed to major boards, agencies and commissions in record numbers.
- All Mississippians had direct access to their government through the Governor's Hotline.

Accomplishments in Government Services

- The Department of Mental Health was created.
- The State Board of Health was improved through internal reorganization.
- A decal system for vehicle tags went into effect.
- Industries for the blind became totally selfsupporting.
- For the first time, state government required interest on idle funds in banks, resulting in millions of dollars collected.

Schwegmann It's Worth The Trip!

Schwegmann Slidell is worth the short 20-minute trip from Picayune and points north or from the Bay St. Louis-Waveland-Pass Christian area. It's a true shopping experience with more than three times the variety of items than most stores, and at low Schwegmann prices. Whether you're shopping for a big family or small one, your weekly trip to Schwegmann more than pays for itself in money saved,

Schwegmann offers fresh, U.S.D.A. Choice meats that are guaranteed to please, plus a full selection of fresh seafood, produce and even imported cheeses. Your one trip to Schwegmann can also handle your other shopping needs, including party supplies, hardware items, housewares, sporting goods, automotive needs and more. Plenty of parking, buses welcome
